

Discoverability comes from the process of the problem-solution Double-Diamond Model, which is in turn made up of these steps: discover, define, develop, deliver.

within this model, you also have Human-Centered design, which is a process centered around the user and their needs, with steps of observation, ideation, prototyping, and testing.

